These castles are inspired by medieval fortresses but crafted with the latest materials and technologies to ensure safety and durability. From majestic towers to hidden passageways, every element is designed for endless hours of play.

When designing the Buglo castles, our goal was to create spaces where children can discover their magical powers. We've added stained glass inspired by magic and legends, transforming children into knights, princesses, or even prisoners. Every element, from scanimation to functional walls, is designed to ignite the imagination and develop the skills of young explorers.

Expert Insights from Buglo

Prof. Maciej Błaszak
from Adam Mickiewicz University

We realize the importance of playground time when this form of child activity begins to dwindle. It turns out that three processes are essential for proper human development, which we see lacking in the current generation of 30-somethings and younger, but which are fulfilled by Buglo playgrounds:

Spontaneous Play:

encourages creativity and imagination.

Emotional Tuning:

play helps regulate emotions and build relationships.

Social Learning:

children learn social norms and cooperation.

Games and activities on the playground help children handle conflicts, shaping strategic intelligence. Adhering to social norms during play facilitates collaboration, developing cultural intelligence.
