

Turning Life

The designer combines the life functions and delicate aesthetic feeling to create the hotel style with the highly comfortable texture in the limited space.

The private field is arranged near the entrance.
The entrance area is just the public field outside the room.
The design of the wood pattern on the shoe cabinet, bedroom door, and wall makes the overall visual effect integrated and harmonious.

Private field first

The designer combines the life functions and delicate aesthetic feeling to create the hotel style with the highly comfortable texture in the limited space.
To correspond to the owner's life habit, the house breaks the existing framework of putting public field before private field.

On the partition wall the table and chairs, floral art, and paintings of the proper size are placed to make an end view style.

To achieve the complete functions and the space comfort and solve the original shortcoming of small space, the I-shaped stairs are turned into the square shape so that the additional space can be made into the Japanese-style room upstairs.

The stair handrail is designed at a slanting angle for the convenience of cleaning.

The upstairs is the public field of the family life core.

The TV wall combined with the storage cabinet meets the practical needs in life.

In the open dining room space, the selected dining table can stretch from 120 to 220 cm to meet the needs of the different activities in daily life.

To make the family and friends enjoy interaction to their heart's content, the hospitable owner specially places the sofa in the center and arranges the staircase of the Japanese-style room and dining room bench on both sides at the same sitting height to maximize the number of the seats.

The transparent material makes the public field broader and more comfortable.

The Japanese-style space at the staircase is separated by glass so that the outdoor natural light can extend downstairs and increase the indoor brightness.

With the flexibility of the adjustable table in the Japanese-style room, it can be used for reading and as the Mahjong table for the seniors.
